The Proudest Red
Dad held out a red, spotty gift and I grabbed it with excitement. Suddenly I saw a beautiful, gorgeous red dress. I held it and I shouted I love it so MUCH!!!! I hugged my Dad so tightly it was like I would never let him go. I knew the dress was special because my Dad made it for me. I am so so so excited to wear it to school. I wonder what my friends at school are going to think about my dress? I skipped all the way happily to class. I walked on the playground. Someone nearby lazes and says

Why are you wearing that long strawberry on your body. I felt that I went red all over my face because I was so embarrassed that I look like a tomato.

But I just ignored them because my Dad made it for me and I am proud of it and I am grateful for what he gets for me. It is not a long strawberry. It is like roses shining in the sunshine on a summer Springs morning on a fresh piece of lawn. After lunch,

I drew a picture of me and my Dad. On a beach on a lovely Springs day. I wore my favorite, lovely red dress and with a Nike t-shirt and bad looking grey shorts.

Mr. Robinson he it was AMAZIN 15 hours later. A boy shouted across the playground and said "Why are you wearing that long tomato on your body." It's not a long tomato. It is like berries Shining in the Sunshine.

I remember my dads smile and his words he said to me I am going to do the right thing and ignore all the rude coments they say and be proud and happy. And wear what I like and if they do not like and say mean coments I will just ignore them and do what is right. ✓
